

Shoots and Editing Scenarios

Every situation the Shoots page and the Editor page are built to handle, what you press, what the app does by itself, who is told, and what shows on screen. Written to the Team's Playbook (July 2026) and the quality-review rule of 11 September 2026: account manager or designer or editor, then Joy, then the scheduler.

Blue stages move by themselves on the calendar. The others move when a person presses the one button under "Where it is" on the shoot page. Nothing needs to be dragged; dragging on the board is a second way to do the same thing.

Whose page it is. The shoot page and every button on it belong to the account manager on the client, the person who created the shoot, a super admin and a general user. Editors, schedulers and crew never open it: the plan reaches them in the email and on the editor's card, and an old link sends them to their Editor page. Every stamp on the page says who did it and when ("Shared with the team by Ada, Mon 14 Sept 9:10 am"), and "Created by Ada" sits under the title and on the board card.

The one-week rule. The plan must be shared with the team at least 7 days before the shoot. A late plan turns the card red, tells the AM and Abby once a day, and blocks Go. Only a super admin can go ahead late, with a reason that stays on the card.

	SITUATION	WHAT YOU DO	WHAT THE APP DOES	WHO IS TOLD
1	A super admin sets up a shoot and gives it to an AM	Shoots › New shoot plan: client, title, what the shoot is for, shoot date, account manager. Create.	The shoot is made — it IS the plan; no separate plan document. It appears in Draft with "Created by Divina"; its page opens with the six stages across the top and "Next: fill the plan".	The AM: "You're the account manager on ..."
2	An AM or a general user starts their own shoot	Same popup. A general user can also name the AM, editor and crew.	Same as above. The creator always sees the shoot.	The AM, if someone else
3	The plan is for a shoot that already exists	Open that shoot on Shoots and write the plan there.	The shoot is the plan; nothing is made twice.	—

4	Filling the nine parts	On the shoot page type into each row of "The shoot plan": objective, the lines of what is coming out, the shot list, script, date with call time and location, talent, props and wardrobe, client availability, editor priorities and edit deadline — every field is inside its row. References and the mood board go on the canvas below.	Each row ticks as it is filled. A shot list or script written on the canvas ticks too, marked "from the canvas". The card counts "6 of 9 filled" and names what is missing.	—
5	Naming who is on the shoot	Editor: who edits the footage after the shoot. Crew on the day: videographer, presenter, anyone on set.	They appear on the card. Nobody is emailed until the plan is shared.	—
6	Sharing before the plan is complete	Press Share the plan with 7 of 9.	Refused: "Not yet — script, talent still to fill in. Nothing moves forward on half-information."	—
7	Sharing the plan	Press Share the plan with the team, with 9 of 9.	Moves to Shared with team . The editor's one card is made and given to them. Card reads "0 of 2 acknowledged"; the page reads "Shared with the team by Ada, Mon 14 Sept 9:10 am".	Editor: "Read the plan" with the whole plan in the email and a link to their card, where "I've read the plan" is. Crew: the same email with a one-press "I've read the plan" link — no page, no login.
8	The plan is shared late (under 7 days out)	Nothing extra; it still shares.	Card turns red: "Plan is late — needed 7 days before the shoot". Go is refused for the AM.	AM and Abby, once

9	The client must sign the plan off	Under "Where it is" press Share the plan with the client — at any stage from Draft on, once the nine parts are in. No teammate check in between; the creator can review it themselves and send it.	The plan goes on the client portal and "Where it is" reads "With the client since Mon 14 Sept". The client approves it there or asks for changes, and the line becomes "Client approved Tue 15 Sept" or "Client asked for changes Tue 15 Sept: swap the opener" — on the page and on the board card. Sharing again after changes clears the answer.	The client: the plan in the email and a link to their portal. Then the AM, the creator and Abby: "Dee · Acme approved the plan"
10	Someone has not read the plan	Press Confirm — it is go anyway.	The button is grey with the reason under it: "1 of 2 on the shoot have not acknowledged the plan". "What happened" reads "Read by Martin Mon 14 Sept · not yet: Yusuf".	—
11	Everyone has read it; the AM confirms	Tick "Aligned with the strategist" and "Client and location confirmed". Press Confirm — it is go.	One press books the shoot and moves it to Confirmed . The shoot becomes the editor's one card now: titled with the shoot, owned by the named editor, due on the edit deadline, briefed with everything coming out and the priorities, marked "Shoot on 21 Sept — footage after that". Every final goes onto that card as a file.	The editor: "You're on Acme launch — your card is ready, shoot on 21 Sept, due 25 Sept"
12	The plan is late and the shoot must still happen	A super admin types a one-line reason and presses Go anyway (super admin).	Booked and confirmed. The card wears Went ahead late — reason ; the reason stays in the history.	Abby and the client's managers, once
13	The editor is not known yet	Leave Editor as "Not picked yet" and confirm as usual.	The card is still made, with nobody on it. It sits in Draft on Post approval as "Nobody on it — anyone can take it". No editor sees it yet. The morning after the shoot the AM is asked once to name one.	The AM, after the shoot
14	The editor is named after Go	Pick the editor on the shoot page, or Hand to... on the card.	The shoot's card gets that editor, the deadline and the priorities at once.	The editor
15	The day before	Abby presses Reminder sent.	Moves to Reminder sent .	Editor and crew: call time, address, talent, props
16	Shoot day	Nothing.	Moves to Shoot day by itself. "Shooting today", then "Shot yesterday".	—

17	The footage comes in	The AM (or the creator) pastes the Dropbox or Drive folder into "Footage folder" under "Where it is", and presses Footage is in if it is ready early. An editor or crew member cannot press it.	The morning after the shoot the shoot moves to Footage in by itself. The shoot's card gets the folder under "Files to work from" and reads "Footage should be in".	The editor: "Footage should be in — start the edit. Footage folder: link"
18	Abby wants the editor to work from specific files	Open a card, "Files to work from": upload clips or stills, or paste the folder.	Thumbnails and the folder show on the card above the editor's versions.	The editor
19	The shoot date moves	Change the date on the shoot page.	The seven-day clock and the stage are recalculated. Cards keep their edit deadline until you change it.	—
20	Who sees a shoot	—	On the Shoots board: its creator, the AM on it, the client's account managers, general users, every super admin — and the editor and crew see the shoots they are named on. Only the first group opens the shoot page; the editor and crew open the shoot's card on Editor instead. Never another client's team.	—
22	Who did what	Read "What happened" under "Where it is".	One line per step with the person and the time: created, shared with the team, read by whom (and who has not), the two ticks, shared with the client and their answer, go, the reminder, footage in (by a person, or "by itself the morning after"). A shoot from before this reads "by the team" where the person was not kept.	—
21	Finding one shoot or one person's shoots	On the Shoots board: Client picker, People picker, search, or By date.	The board narrows; the address carries the choice so a link can be shared.	—

The editor, card by card

In progress	For review	Quality check	With client	For handoff	Done
-------------	------------	---------------	-------------	-------------	------

These are the Editor page columns. An editor or designer sees only their own cards. An account manager sees every card for their clients; a super admin every card.

One shoot, one card. Finals only. A shoot makes one card for the editor, holding every final as a file. A card takes pictures and videos. Raw footage, project files and source files stay on the hard drive and Dropbox; the card carries a link to them. Nothing reaches a scheduler without Joy or a super admin passing it.

	SITUATION	WHAT YOU DO	WHAT THE APP DOES	WHO IS TOLD
1	A card lands from a shoot	Open it. Press Acknowledge the same day.	One card for the whole shoot sits in In progress with the shoot's name, the deadline, and "what needs doing" listing everything coming out plus the priorities, and "Footage after the shoot" until the day passes. Each final is uploaded onto it; the card counts "3 of 6 finals in". Acknowledge is one press.	—
2	A manager makes a card by hand	Editor › New card: client, title, what needs doing, kind of work, which shoot, which deliverable, files to work from or the folder, due date, who.	Lands in the editor's In progress with Acknowledge.	The editor
3	The deadline is at risk	Press Flag a deadline risk, one line why.	A red chip on the card.	The client's account managers
4	Uploading the final	Upload the export, or Pick the final from Google Drive, or paste a link. Add the Dropbox source-files link.	A numbered version. A playable preview is made at once. Drive files are copied in; the app never writes to Drive.	—
5	Pressing Ready for checking with no file	—	Refused: "Attach the work first". The button stays until a file or a link is on the card.	—
6	Ready for checking	Press it.	Moves to For review . On Post approval the same card sits in Internal check with "Needs a check — nobody asked yet".	The client's account managers
7	The AM checks it	AM reviews caption, message, cover, timing. Presses Send for quality check, or Ask for changes with a note, or Ask somebody to check it to name a reviewer.	Moves to Quality check . The AM can no longer send straight to the client.	Joy. If nobody is flagged, the super admins

8	Joy passes it	Joy presses Passed — send to client, or Passed — approve without client for clients who do not sign off.	Moves to With client and "Sent to client 11 Sept" is stamped once: the delivery date. A super admin can pass it in Joy's place; the history says so.	The client on the portal; Joy if a super admin stood in
9	Joy or the AM sends it back	Ask for changes, with what to change.	Back to For review for the editor with "Your turn" and the note in their words.	The editor
10	Revisions done	Upload version 2, press Revisions done.	Back to the AM, then Joy again.	The account managers
11	The client approves	On their portal: open each file, Approve. Or the AM logs their approval.	Moves to For handoff on Editor and Ready to post on Post approval. Handed to the client's default schedulers.	Schedulers: "needs a posting date". AM and editor: "now Ready to post"
12	The client asks for changes	They write it on the portal, on the whole post or on one file.	Back to the editor with the client's words; the card shows "Changes in progress" to the client.	The editor and the AM
13	A new version after approval	Upload again on an approved card.	The approval is taken back: through Joy and the client again, because the approved pictures changed. A booked post must be cancelled first.	The account managers
14	The client posts their own content	Once per client: "This client posts their own content". Per card: the Deliver only box.	After the client approves, the card stops in Delivered on Post approval, Done on Editor. No scheduler sees it. The portal reads "Approved — yours to post" with Download per file and the caption.	The client; the AM
15	Handing the card to a different editor	Three-dot menu › Hand to..., pick the person, optional note.	The card moves to their page.	The new editor
16	A designer's work: carousel, static, story	Same as an editor; the role is the same.	The card's kind is Graphics; a shoot whose plan is all stills and carousels makes a Graphics card, one with anything moving a Video edit card.	—
17	Research, strategy or copy with nothing to post	New card with that kind of work.	Runs In progress › For review › Done. Never reaches Joy or a scheduler.	—

18	The card is booked and then posted	Nothing on the editor's side.	Editor shows Done . Post approval shows Booked in, then Posted when every channel is live, with each channel's link. A posted file can never be changed here.	The editor: "posted"
19	A manager wants to see who is doing what	Post approval or Editor: Client picker and People picker at the top.	Each person lists with their card count; the board narrows; the address carries it.	—
20	Whose move is it	Read the chip on the card.	Your turn means you were asked by name or it is your seat. Needs a check — nobody asked yet means any manager can take it. "Waiting on Martin" names who holds it.	—

Who sees what

Shoots

- Super admin: every shoot, every move.
- Account manager: their clients' shoots, every move.
- General: every shoot; can create, staff and move.
- Editor or crew: the shoots they are named on, on the board only. They never open the shoot page — the plan is on the editor's card and in the email, and "I've read the plan" is pressed there. Nothing on the shoot page is theirs: not the footage folder, not Footage is in.
- Scheduler: only if named as crew, the same way.
- The creator of a shoot works its page whatever their role.
- Client: the plan on their portal when it is shared with them; never the team's stages.

Editor and Post approval

- Super admin: every card; may pass quality check.
- Account manager: their clients' cards; checks and sends to Joy.
- Quality reviewer (Joy): every card in Quality check for every client, plus their own role's cards.
- Editor or designer: only cards they own, through every stage.
- General: their own cards; every client's Ready to post queue.
- Scheduler: cards handed to them from Ready to post on, plus their own uploads. Never a deliver-only card.
- Client: their own cards on the portal as Being made, Being checked, Needs your review, Changes in progress, Approved, Delivered or Posted.

Set up once

- Team page: switch on Quality reviewer for Joy and Ops contact for Abby. Until Joy is flagged, every quality check goes to the super admins and a banner says so.
- Each client's page: Who schedules for this client (Cath, Raven), and This client posts their own content where that is true.
- Editors and designers hold the editor role; schedulers the scheduler role. Joy keeps whatever role she has.

Every step above writes a line in the card's or shoot's "What happened" with who and when. The whole chain from New shoot plan to Posted is re-run on the live database against the test client before each release.
